

A9 Dualling: Tomatin to Moy

Artist announcement and public workshops

As part of the lasting legacy of A9 Dualling: Tomatin to Moy project, public art installations will be designed and installed at the new Tomatin Grade Junction, and at the proposed enhanced laybys at the Aultnaslanach Viaduct and Allt na Slanaich. Following a procurement process, we are delighted to announce that we have appointed local artist, Robyn Woolston, as the artist who will be supporting the design and creation of the new art installations, in collaboration with the local community.

Friday 27 June 2025: 1pm to 3pm

Saturday 28 June: 10am to 12pm

The Strathdearn Hub, Tomatin, Inverness, IV13 7YN

These drop-in creative workshops will invite community members from across the entire Strathdearn boundary to share their thoughts, feelings, drawings and stories about the local area and what it means to them.

Pop along for ten minutes or stay for the entire session.

All are welcome and we look forward to seeing you there.

“I work in a person-centred way so that the workshops focus on local relevance & cultural accuracy. Drawing directly from the lived-experiences, stories, values and knowledge of community members. This ensures the design reflects real, grounded aspects of place — not assumptions made from outside. In the case of Strathdearn, local voices can illuminate unique ecological features, historical events or sensory experiences that might otherwise be overlooked.” Robyn Woolston
